On the occasion of the International Activities to Celebrate the 84th Anniversary of the Birth of His Majesty King Bhumibol Adulyadej and the International Observance of Visaka Bucha Day in conjunction with an International Conference on "Buddhist Virtues in Socio-Economic Development" May 12-14, 2554, your Christian, Buddhist and Islamic colleagues at Payap University, Chiang Mai wish you well in all aspects of your ambitious undertaking over the three days of your program. We eagerly await the conclusions you reach about the connections between ethics and social development, for we whole-heartedly agree that they are inseparable, and that it must be the contribution of Buddhists to explicate those perspectives on these crucial matters that would otherwise remain obscure. I cannot think of a more appropriate way to honor our beloved King than by advancing his life-long interests in virtue and socio-economic development brought to focus in his internationally-acclaimed "Sufficiency Economy Philosophy".

Sincerely and respectfully,

The Rev. Asst. Prof. Dr. Pradit Takerngrangsarit
President of Payap University, Chiang Mai
